What is the Employability Pipeline?

Most organisations in Scotland now recognise the Employability Pipeline model, which has been developed as a framework to support the effective delivery of employability services. The pipeline is made up of 5 key stages, whereby the needs of the individual are considered in relation to existing soft skills, employability skills and skills requiring development.

How do I know which stage is right for me?

Each stage has a guidance description and status of either not job ready, job ready or in work. There are a number of informal assessments that training providers and partners referring you to the programme can do with you, before deciding which stage is best to meet your needs. Here is an overview of each stage, but further information can be found on the Employability in Scotland website.

For an informal idea of where you may be in relation to this pipeline take our Self-Assessment Quiz.
